GENEVA, Switzerland (October 7th, 2007) – H7b1 (www.h7b1.com), the Swiss firm pioneering litigation technology practice in Europe, today announces the addition of trial presentation services to its litigation support service portfolio.

Trial presentation technology provides litigators and arbitrators the capability of using desktop computers in courtroom environments to manage documents and present document-based information.

Scanned documents, electronic files, emails, video clips, audio clips, graphs, and charts are some of the document formats that can be prepared for optimal courtroom presentations.

The technology enables users to prepare sophisticated document sequences and parts of documents can be highlighted, magnified or compared, either in advance or live during the trial.

H7b1's trial presentation services consist primarily of assisting its legal clients in choosing the appropriate presentation application, preparing the trial document database and supporting arbitrators and litigators in the use of the presentation solutions.

H7b1's Integrated Service Unit offers its clients the fundamental advantage of solutions tailored to European and international requirements, such as taking into account multiple litigation lifecycles or facilitating the handling of legal information in compliance with various data privacy laws on the Continent.

Integrated Litigation Technology Services on the Continent

“Providing our clients with trial presentation services is not simply going the extra mile, it is an essential part of the provision of integrated support solutions to corporate and legal organisations in Europe.” said Rafik E. Abboud, Partner and Chief Technology Architect for H7b1.
